The top of the acid casein price range moved lower this week. The bottom of the acid casein range and both ends of the rennet casein price range were unchanged. Acid casein demand is softening in Oceania, and contacts say interest from purchasers in other regions is steady. In Oceania, milk output is declining seasonally, contributing to lighter acid casein production. Despite this decline in production, acid casein remains available for spot purchasing. In Europe, demand for rennet casein is steady from purchasers both within the region and from other regions. Rennet casein production is steady, though some contacts say increasing milk output in Europe in the coming weeks will likely contribute to increased rennet casein production. Rennet casein is available for spot purchasing.
