Cotton: World Markets and Trade

Dwindling Foreign Demand Highlighted by Collapse of Old Crop U.S. Export Sales

Net sales of U.S. cotton continued negative for an unprecedented 11th consecutive week as short-term global demand has effectively evaporated.

Concerns about record high old-crop prices causing end-use “demand destruction” and the prospect of larger new crops coming to market later this year has shifted the buyers’ perspective to a wait-and-see mode. Not even a 30 percent drop in the July futures prices has been able to stimulate nearby demand, as cancellations continue to outnumber new sales.

Foreign supplies remain tight in the short run as India has banned exports in recent months, while Brazil and Australia have run out of old crop and significant new crop supplies are still a couple of months away. With Uzbekistan’s policies constraining exports, the United States has become the only major active exporter, and the barometer for the world cotton market.

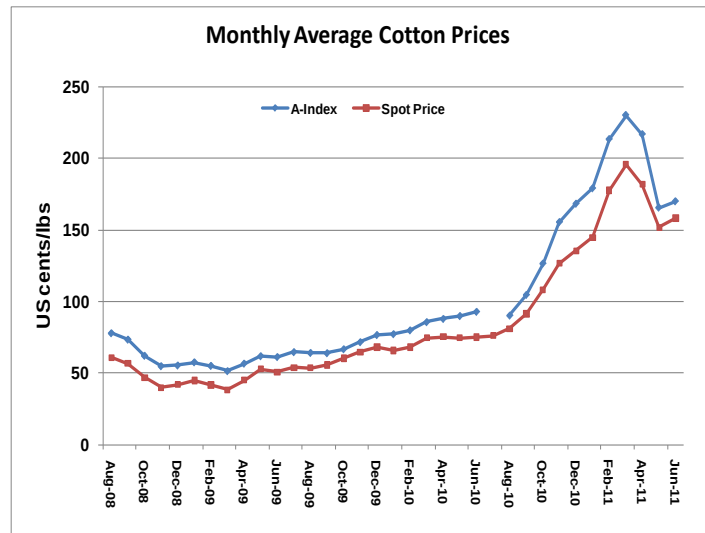

Plunging July futures have been a reflection of foreign buyers’ apathy toward old crop supplies and the expectation of larger new crops. However, deteriorating U.S. crop conditions have undoubtedly helped stimulate recent December futures prices, shrinking the spread from 80 cents in early March to less than 20 cents.

Overview

The forecasts for 2011/12 show marginally lower world production. Global use, trade, and ending stocks are down slightly due to the tighter supply. U.S. production is down 1.0 million bales to 17.0 million on continued adverse weather in the southwest and exports are reduced. The season average price reduced marginally, but still a record.

Prices

Both the U.S spot price and the A-Index have stabilized after having fallen dramatically in recent weeks. The A-index is about 30 percent below the record set earlier this spring and the U.S. Spot price is about 20 percent below its recent record.

TRADE CHANGES 2011/12

Major Exporters:

- Brazil is up 100,000 bales to 4.6 million on large carry in from their record crop that is currently being harvested.
- United States down 500,000 bales to 13.0 million on lower production.
- Australia is up 200,000 bales to 4.5 million as 2010/11 shipments are delayed into the next season.

Major Importers:

- Mexico is down 100,000 bales to 1.25 million on a larger domestic crop.
- Pakistan is down 100,000 bales to 1.3 million on larger carry in stocks.

TRADE CHANGES IN 2010/11

Major Exporters:

- United States down 500,000 bales to 15.0 million on lagging sales and late season cancellations.
- Australia is lowered 200,000 bales to 2.8 million as late season shipments are pushed into next season.

Major Importers:

- China is lowered 1.0 million bales to 12.5 million based on weaker domestic demand.
