Cotton: World Markets and Trade

Global Utilization Constrained by High Prices

Sluggish world economic growth in 2011/12 is forecast to constrain global textile demand, while relatively high cotton prices are encouraging competition from man-made fibers.

Historically, the U.S. farm price and the A-Index have tracked each other. However, the U.S. farm price is forecast at another record high this season, while the A-Index is expected to decline from last season's astronomical level, but remain above historical levels. As global stocks shrunk, prices surged over the last two seasons. Higher world production in 2011/12, in the absence of growth in demand, is expected to help rebuild global stocks.

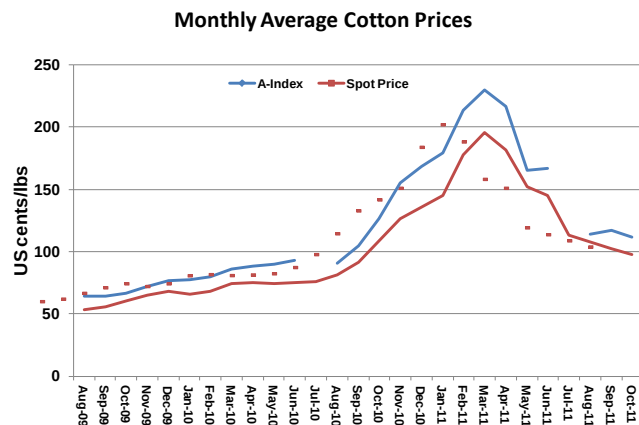

Further clouding the utilization outlook are concerns about world GDP growth, especially in developed economies, which accounts for about half of world consumer use of cotton. The global recession in 2008 and the ensuing fall in cotton utilization highlighted the correlation between utilization and economic growth. Cotton utilization remains constrained, and further weakening of the economic outlook could have an additional adverse impact on global utilization.

Overview

Although, world supply is up due to higher beginning stocks and production, total trade is down slightly. World use is down slightly, resulting in higher ending stocks. U.S. production is increased marginally, while exports are decreased 500,000 bales due weaker import demand in major U.S. markets (especially China) and stronger competition from larger crops in southern hemisphere exporting countries. The forecast mid-point season average price is unchanged at a record high level.

Prices

The U.S spot price continued to decline steadily, falling below $1.00 for the first time in over a year. The A-Index also has continued to decline in the face of harvest in northern hemisphere countries progressing without unexpected problems and very limited buying in all major markets.

TRADE CHANGES 2011/12

Major Exporters:

- United States is lowered 500,000 bales to 11.5 million on stronger export competition.
- India is down 250,000 bales to 5.25 million on stronger export competition.
- Brazil is raised 200,000 bales to 3.8 million on increased exportable supplies.
- Australia is raised 100,000 bales to 4.3 million on increased production.
- Argentina is lowered 100,000 bales to 300,000 bales on higher domestic demand.
- Uzbekistan is cut 100,000 bales to 2.8 million due to stronger export competition.

Major Importers:

- China is reduced 500,000 bales to 14.0 million on lower domestic use.
- Bangladesh is cut 200,000 bales to 3.5 million on larger supply.
- Vietnam is reduced 200,000 bales to 1.6 million on slowing demand.
- Turkey is raised 100,000 bales to 3.2 million to build stocks.
