Cheese barrel prices stayed above $1.7000 and cheese block prices stayed below $1.7000 on the CME for week 28 as of report time. Although the availability of Class III spot milk loads is tighter in some parts of the East, contractual Class III loads to cheese manufacturers are being met. Cheese production schedules vary from somewhat lighter to somewhat stronger following the holiday weekend. Domestic demand is steady. Export demand is stronger. Stakeholders convey prices for US cheese remain competitive against many internationally produced cheeses.
