Block and barrel prices are trending upward on the CME this week. Contractual Class III milk load commitments to cheese manufacturers are being met. In some parts of the region the availability of Class III spot milk loads is tighter. Cheese production schedules are mostly steady. Sellers report domestic demand as steady or lighter with the shorter holiday week at hand. Export demand is stronger. Stakeholders convey prices for US cheese are competitive against prices for several internationally produced cheeses, despite some recent upward movement in US cheese prices.

Information for the period June 30 - July 4, 2025, issued weekly
